

List of financial documents and information to bring to the first meeting with Attorney Julia Rueschemeyer:

1. Copy of your most recent paystub (or a typical recent paystub if the most recent one isn't typical).
2. W-2 for the most recent tax year.
3. Proof of any other income, including social security, disability, or retirement
4. If either of you is self-employed or has rental income, bring your 1040 for the most recent tax year (I don't need to keep a copy). If you don't have your 1040 and either of you is self-employed, bring taxes and any other tax return for a business which shows your income, including Schedule C and (if you have rental property income) Schedule E.
5. List of retirement accounts. For each account, provide the name of the account and the amount in it.
6. Information about pension(s), if any.
7. List of savings or checking accounts, with name of bank and approximate amount of money in the account.
8. List of debts, including credit card debt. Include the amount owed and the name of the company you owe it to.
9. Amounts owing on car loans.
10. Value of cars. You can look up the 'private party value' at kbb.com or NADA.com or simply agree on an approximate value.
11. 'Fair market value' and the 'tax assessed value' of houses or other real estate that is in either or both of your names.
12. The amount of any mortgage owing on properties you own.
13. The approximate number of years that each of you has paid into Social Security (You can get an exact number by creating a "my social security account" at <https://www.ssa.gov/myaccount>, but it takes some time and effort to set up passwords for the site).
14. Any prenuptial agreement you might have (not common).
15. Check, cash, or credit card to pay Attorney Rueschemeyer

Financial Statement Expenses

The court “Financial Statements” require approximate amounts for each of the categories in the chart below. If you fill this chart out ahead of time and bring it to our first meeting, it can save us a little time (and save you a little money). Each spouse should fill out their own sheet.

The only categories where you should try to be accurate are “m) Medical insurance” and “r) Child care”, as these numbers can affect child support calculations. I will discuss these numbers with you at our meeting. The numbers entered for other categories do not normally play any role in an uncontested divorce, so don’t spend much time trying to get them exact.

- You should only make one entry in each row. Enter a weekly OR monthly OR yearly amount for each category, whichever is easiest for a particular category. For example, you might enter a “Per Week” grocery amount, a “Per Month” rent amount, and a “Per Year” homeowner’s insurance amount.
- Do not include, on this sheet, amounts that are pulled directly out of your paycheck (such as medical insurance, for many people).
- If you or your spouse pays one of these expenses out of a joint account, each spouse should list half the total amount for that category on their own sheet.
